Heart Patient, 11, Begins Normal Life Following Surgery

By Peggy Bancroft
SOUTH STERLING — Her very first normal birthday was observed in February by Darlene Drake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Maki, of Detroit, Mich., granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Drake, of South Sterling.

Darlene and her twin, Marlene, had 11 candles on their birthday cake. But for Darlene, the birthday marked the beginning of a whole new life, thanks to modern surgical methods.

When Darlene was three months old, doctors discovered that she had a hole as large as a quarter in the lower part of

Servicemen Overseas To Pay Car Cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration Sunday told members of the armed forces overseas they no longer can bring home foreign cars at government expense.

And after the middle of the year, they will be put on the same basis as civilian tourists with respect to shipping gifts back to the United States duty-free. Members of the military now are allowed to send gifts valued up to $50 for any one shipment, free of duty.

This is under a law which the administration intends to let lapse on June 30 and thus put military personnel on a $10 limit—the amount applicable to tourists.

The action on gifts is separate from President Kennedy's request to Congress to cut from the present $500 maximum to $100 the amount of foreign goods U. S. tourists can bring back for themselves without paying customs duties.

The new moves are part of a campaign to cut down on dollar spending by members of the armed forces, civilian employees of the Defense Department, and dependents. The ultimate aim is to reduce the flow of gold from this country.

The new program was ordered into effect as a substitute for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's plan to bring dependents of the armed forces home from overseas posts.

That order raised such a rumpus that Kennedy quickly canceled it and directed the Pentagon to find other means of reducing expenditures of dollars abroad.

About one million persons are affected. The new administration hopes to bring about a reduction of $75 to $110 a year for each of them in the amounts they spend overseas. This would mean a total reduction of $75 million to $110 million.

Part of the new program is voluntary. But some is compulsory.

Macmillan Cuts Short His Weekend

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan cut his weekend in the country short Sunday night and hurried back to London to try to patch up his differences with Sir Roy Welensky, blunt-speaking prime minister of the Central African Federation.

Their meeting represented Macmillan's opening attempt to bring a "keep calm" atmosphere to the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference starting Wednesday. The conference—10th of its kind since World War II—is being held under the shadow of growing disagreements on racial questions.

In particular, Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa finds the racial segregation policies of his government under mounting attack from many of the other leaders. Some British newspapers predict this conference may bring a rupture of South Africa's link with the Commonwealth.

But this will not happen if Macmillan has his way. He hopes the 10 days of talks will be completed without any disruption of the hard to define ties which bind this multiracial group of nations together.

her heart. At that time, there was no known way to close the opening. Surgery that could be effected on the upper part of the heart was saving many lives, but none had yet been done on the lower chamber.

Darlene's activities were so restricted that she had to attend a school for handicapped children. Practically every sentence spoken to her by her mother began with "Don't do that!"

Then, two years ago, an operation on the lower heart chamber was perfected. Mrs. Maki was faced with the decision to make. Doctors gave her some encouragement; some doubts. She decided to put off the operation as long as her daughter "held her own," although she had been warned that the child would probably not live after the age of eleven.

Then last year, Darlene began to fail visibly. The time had arrived.

Has Operation

Just before Christmas, on Nov. 29, she entered the hospital at Ann Arbor, Michigan. On December 3, the operation was performed. Doctors gave the parents "little hope."

The result of the operation was much more than hope; much more than just prolonged but restricted life. Darlene not only survived, but she now is well on the way to a complete, normal life. She can dance, skip, play, do anything she chooses.

Recently, the local grandparents talked with Darlene and her mother by telephone. It was a wonderful talk—full of renewed hope and joy.

"It made me think," said Mrs. Drake, "that if someone else were facing the same problem—whether or not to have a similar operation—it might help someone to know Darlene's story."

Mermaid Search Planned Off England This Summer

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (AP) — This beautiful holiday island off England's west coast claims it has mermaids. It plans to hold a mermaid hunt this summer to find out for sure.

Several islanders insist they have seen mermaids sunning themselves on the rocky shores—and they say the creatures are gorgeous.

One member of the House of Keys, the island's parliament, is reported to have offered 20,000 pounds—$56,000—to the first person who can land such an elusive catch.

King Cmdr. Roy MacDonald says he once saw two red-haired mermaids swimming about five miles offshore.

"They were moving at about 12 long, but I could not see her tail," said Miss Cowell. "She had a lovely figure. Any man would have fallen in love with her."

Miss Cowell even made a quick estimate on the mermaid's vital statistics—35-25-35.

A mermaid, for any sheltered reader not exposed previously to the word, is supposed to be half woman (upper half) and half fish (lower half). The scientific gentry says in the dictionaries and scientific books that a mermaid is a "fabled" creature—meaning they think there is no such thing. Some even attribute the legends about mermaids to sailors who once saw a dugong or a manatee, which are creatures that live in the sea and are supposed to look like mermaids.

Well, no matter. The Manx people would be just as interested in catching a tourist or two as in catching a mermaid—maybe more so.

$5 Million Damage

1 Dead, 93 Hurt In Chicago Tornado

CHICAGO (AP) — Tornado struck Chicago counted one dead, 93 injured, and $5 million damage Sunday from a twister that raked across the city's South Side late Saturday.

Despite swarms of Sunday kibitzers who jammed traffic, cleanup squads made good progress mopping up the damage.

The U. S. Weather Bureau waited until examination of the damage path before listing the storm as a true tornado. Joe R. Fulks, chief forecaster, said it was a rather small tornado but very fast-moving.

The storm's concussion-like winds brought disaster in two general neighborhoods. Driving northeast toward Lake Michigan, it first struck near 88th Street and Hermitage Avenue about 5:15 p.m., devastating about five square blocks. A moment later, it landed like a barrage along 87th Street between Loomis and Ashland.

30 Blocks Hit

Then, vaulting a mile of a heavily populated residential and small shop section, it battered an area south of Chicago bounded by 71st and 73rd streets and extending from Evans to Ingleside avenues.

About 30 square blocks suffered heavy damage.

Damage included many shattered building walls, smashed roofs, tens of thousands of shattered windows, uprooted trees and utility poles. Automobiles were tossed around like fiddlywinks.

Illinois Central commuter trains were stopped by rubble.

Most of the injured were hurled against buildings or battered by debris. Few, if any, were trapped or buried. One man was standing in his back yard and found himself a moment later atop the porch roof, seriously injured.

William Arnold, 59, died in a hospital several hours after he was found unconscious on a street.

Seek Refuge

Residents of the areas about nine miles south of the Loop found refuge in the homes of friends and relatives. The Red Cross dispatched disaster teams, which provided an emergency shelter in the basement of a Catholic school, but only half a dozen of the 52 beds were used.

Mayor Richard J. Daley inspected the neighborhood, then termed the storm "a tremendous disaster." Fire Commissioner Robert J. Quinn estimated property damage at $5 million. The heavily damaged sections were without power during the night.

When the winds attacked, Chicagoans had been enjoying a cool, cloudy, spring-like day. Then, sudden darkness.

Edward Hirsch, 52, a furniture salesman, said he was driving when "all of a sudden my car was flying through the air." He said the winds turned the car over three times, then dropped it to the pavement. He escaped with cuts and bruises. The auto was demolished.

Slate Belt Not Affected By Walkout

THE POSSIBILITY of a strike of ten dress manufacturers in the Allentown area won't affect the Slate Belt territory, an industry spokesman said last night.

The ten dress shops were expected to go on strike today. Murray Feldman, general manager of the Allentown office of the United Better Dress Manufacturers Assn., did not specifically list the shops. They were reported as "independent" jobbers not affiliated with an industry trade association.

The Slate Belt manufacturers deal mostly with blouses. George Giacinto, vice president of the Slate Belt Apparel Contractors Assn., said last night their association doesn't list any dress makers.

Business associations, however, are associated with the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

The dress makers' walkout would be called by the ILGWU which has just completed a new three-year contract with the dress manufacturers' association, including the United Better Dress Manufacturing Assn.

Two Cars Collide

STATE POLICE from the Stroudsburg barracks investigated a two-car accident Saturday at 11:50 p.m. at the intersection of Route 611 and old Route 611. There were no injuries and the damage estimated at $10.

Police identified the drivers as John J. Picard, 18, Scotrun and Mrs. Iona Williams, 36, of Tannersville.

Mrs. Williams told police that she was traveling north on Route 611 and was attempting a right turn into old Route 611 at the time of the accident.

Picard told police that he was stopped at the stop sign and that he did not see the other car as he attempted to start out.

The cars collided at the intersection.

May Add $10-$20 Million To Lawrence's Budget

HARRISBURG (AP) — Legislative pressures apparently may add $10-$20 million to Gov. Lawrence's 1961-62 budget, administration sources estimated Sunday.

They were about ready to concede there was no chance to repeal the century-old closed school subsidy or to prevent the legislature from extending the freeze on general school subsidies another year.

Dr. David H. Kurtzman, secretary of administration, estimated it would cost over $8.5 million if the legislature has its way in these two instances.

Majority Gieseley, executive secretary to the governor, estimated it eventually would mean another $10-$20 million if rumored, undisclosed appropriations are added to the $95 million budget by the legislature.

Senate Fight

Meanwhile, a key figure in the Senate fight over the radar bill — Republican Sen. George N. Wade of Cumberland County — said he would propose six changes in the bill when it is debated Tuesday.

Three of them have the support of the state's two big motor clubs, the Pennsylvania Motor Federation (AAA) and the Keystone Automobile Club.

They would:

Limit use of radar for checking speeds to state highways.

Require warning signs to be erected wherever a radar unit is in operation.

Stipulate that all money received in fines for convictions obtained on radar evidence be deposited in the motor fund for use in construction, repair and maintenance of state highways.

The Wade amendments were rejected by the Highways Committee when it considered the bill.

In the House, a final vote was scheduled Monday on the law.

Flood Waters Held Back By Storage Dams

PHILADELPHIA — The flood control dams and reservoirs of the U. S. Army's Corps of Engineers in up-State Pennsylvania stored 6,300,000 gallons of flood waters from Feb. 17 through Feb. 26 appreciably reducing the flows of the Lehigh and Lackawaxen Rivers when the heavy snowfall in the mountains began to melt and combined with moderate rains occurring that week-end.

At White Haven, the Bear Creek Dam stored over four billion gallons and reached a depth of 100 feet at the dam in eight days. This water is now being gradually released as the river stages diminish below the dam.

Near Honesdale, the Prompton Dam on the Lackawaxen River impounded six feet of flood waters above the normal conservation pool level of 35 feet. Over 1½ billion gallons of flood waters were stored.

At Jadin on Dyer Creek, the impounded flood waters reached a depth of 25 feet at the dam for more than ½ billion gallons. Jadin does not provide a conservation pool.

At Stroudsburg, the Bear Creek Dam stored over four billion gallons and reached a depth of 100 feet at the dam in eight days.

At Scranton, the Wilkes-Barre Dam on the Susquehanna River impounded 100 feet of flood waters above the normal conservation pool level of 35 feet. Over 1½ billion gallons of flood waters were stored.

Finding Better Way

Marc A. Buettell, President of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, has invited Sen. Douglas and others engaged in pushing the depressed areas bill to visit Southern Illinois. It is an area that Sen. Douglas and the Labor Department often have referred to as "depressed."

It would seem to deserve the name, as its unemployment level has varied recently between 16 and 25 per cent of the work force.

But Buettell says that the area is attracting industry on its own, and that he'd rather the "depressed area" signs be changed to "open for business."

E. Russell Bartley, industrial relations director of the Illinois Manufacturers Assn. adds: "There's no need to push the panic button."

The declining manpower needs of agriculture and coal have caused an economic dislocation, but local people are striving to deal with it. They know that a federal aid program costs Illinois $1.60 for every dollar Illinois receives.

Do it yourself is better and cheaper.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Wrong Time To Remove Exemption

To date, information on the Kennedy administration's plans for federal tax reforms is largely confined to rumors and trial balloons. It is probable, in fact, that no over-all reform program will be pushed until the next session of Congress.

But one change reportedly being mulled over by some administration officials ought to be grounded early and firmly. This is a proposal to discontinue the tax exempt status of municipal and state bonds.

To accept such a plan would be to play Robin Hood in reverse. It would rob the poor (particularly city and town governments with their already stretched principal tax source, the property tax) to pay the relatively rich (the federal government, with its cornucopia of income taxes).

A great deal of America's "unfinished business" lies in the municipalities. New schools, new streets, bigger airports, expanded water and sewage works are most sensibly undertaken by municipal and state borrowing.

The cost of that borrowing is currently low because the interest on municipal bonds is tax exempt. End this exemption, and interest rates go up, cities have to borrow less or tax citizens more, or Washington has to furnish with one hand the money it has just taken away with the other.

It may be argued that the addition of municipal bond interest as a tax source would permit a general federal tax cut, thus giving citizens more money to pay local property taxes for civic improvements. But this system would hurt the low-income householder more than anyone else—a penalty hard to justify.

The Human Heart

When journalistic highbrows get together some of the shop-talk gravitates about the very old question as to what is news. It used to be, in this country, that folks were interested in what went on about them, births, marriages, murders, ders, lost and found, crooks, political and just plain, and such stirring items.

Then we all became educated and took to dealing with things significant like Cuba and the Congo and what Nasser said to Khrushchev. In fact, all of a sudden the country got so full of experts that all President Kennedy needed to do was play golf at Palm Beach and professors just fitted into jobs in Washington.

Twenty-two states have joined the Compact; Pennsylvania has not. The main reason seems to stem from the fact that joining the compact might cost additional money. A study shows that Pennsylvania would have saved $7,900 during 1960 if it had been a member of the compact. Far more compelling is the fact that the patient would have an increased chance of improvement and recovery, close to family, friends or jobs crucial to his readjustment.

The arrangement is humane and decent. Beside it is good medicine. The compact insures that participating states will provide care, treatment, after-care or supervision for any citizen of a participating state if it is medically in the best interest of the patient. The compact also provides legal safeguards for the patients' civil rights.

The Pennsylvania Story

Billboard Control

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Six million dollars looks good—but it has an even more enticing look somehow if you knew it was yours literally for the asking, and then neglected to ask!

Curious us, perhaps, that is just about the position in which Pennsylvania finds itself at the present time.

And—with a recession demanding an input of more and more money, the question might well be asked whether this is any time to pass up $6,000,000?

It boils down to the ultra-simple fact that unless Pennsylvania's lawmakers act prior to June 30 the Keystone State can kiss the $6,000,000 goodby.

In fact, ultimately it may be more than $6,000,000. In any event, here's the story and why it behoves residents of the Keystone State to budge their local lawmakers off their fiscal haunches:

In 1958 Congress passed legislation creating an "incentive bonus" for states enacting restrictive billboard display legislation on the now abounding $44 billion 41,000-mile Interstate highway system.

On the Interstate system, it will be recalled, the federal government pays 90 per cent of the construction cost—the individual state government the remaining ten per cent. This is the network of four-lane, limited access expressways designed to blanket the nation and connect major cities.

And—with a recession demanding an input of more and more money, the question might well be asked whether this is any time to pass up $6,000,000?

The "incentive" spelled out in the 1958 legislation provides that states enacting billboard control legislation shall receive a "bonus" of one-half per cent of the federal allocation to that state.

In the case of Pennsylvania it is estimated that this "bonus," on the basis of the one-half per cent, will round out to roughly $6,000,000.

It can be even more—perhaps as high as $12,000,000—if the recommendation of the Kennedy Administration in Washington is followed, urging that the rate now be increased to one per cent!

There's a "stopper" though to this multi-million pile. A state to be eligible must have the legislation enacted by July 1 of this year.

In the 1959 legislative session, Pennsylvania's lawmakers flapped and doodled on the subject and did nothing. The outdoor advertising billboard lobby was effective.

The subject couldn't be brought up in the past 1960 session—that was limited to strictly fiscal legislative matters.

It has been brought up again though in this current 1961 session. The Lawrence Administration has backed the proposal to the hilt—and legislation has just been introduced in the House of Representatives, co-sponsored by six Republican and six Democratic members, to carry out the compliance necessary to make Pennsylvania eligible for the jackpot, just as neighboring Maryland already has done.

The Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs—representing some 900 clubs throughout the state—is going all-out in favor of the billboard restriction legislation.

Letters from the club president already have gone to individual members of the House and Senate. The 900 clubs are taking individual action—writing, wiring or calling their local lawmakers, urging approval of the legislation.

The gals are rallying on this one. The question now is whether the lawmakers can be rallied in similar fashion. The tidy sum of $6,000,000—and possibly more—is at stake and waiting.

Backers of the legislation, which basically prohibits billboard advertising closer than 600 feet of an Interstate highway right-of-way, contend it should be enacted regardless of the bonus. Unquestionably they are right but the $6,000,000 tid-bit should indeed be added incentive!

President Roosevelt began his ninth year as president. He had just completed a physical examination and the report was, "The president is in very good health."

A dish washing machine was installed in the Monroe County General Hospital. It had been purchased by the Anna Logan Society at a cost of $325.

Oppose Credits To Reds

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Britain, France and Belgium are seriously considering granting five to ten year trade credits to Russia and its satellites, and the U.S. is emphatically opposed to that.

Conveying this stand to these and other NATO allies is the real purpose of Ambassador Averell Harriman's mystery-cloaked trip to Europe.

The roving envoy is explaining that the Kennedy Administration is not against one-or two-year trade credits such as France and other Western countries have granted the Soviet bloc to buy food and fodder to meet critical crop shortages. But long-term credits are strongly objected to for two reasons:

They would appreciably help the Reds by enabling them to spend more on costly missile and space projects, and for military and economic aid to further their subversion operations in South America, Africa and Asia.

Inside You And Yours

Tunnels, Tears

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.

Baby's eyes had seemed healthy until tears began to well up in one. Soon, thick matter covered those tiny eyelids shut.

Like many children, he was born with a blocked tear duct, a trouble which doesn't show up right away because new babies don't cry tears. Once the tear gland starts pouring out salty moisture, excess tears have to flow down their special drain.

Through a tiny opening on each eyelid, tears are syphoned into a funnel-like sac near the nose. At the bottom of this tear sac, tears drain down a long tear duct into the nose. That's why your nose runs when you cry.

May Need Surgery

Most tear passages open within a few months. If not, the surgeon will push a miniature crowbar down through the tear sac to open the passage.

He can detour tears around any remaining block by connecting the funnel-like tear sac directly to the nose.

"You've got an idea there, Hubert," said the President.

"Maybe something can be done with it. I'll take it up with the Cabinet at our next meeting."

What Kennedy told them

Adolf Berle is still the President's first choice for Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin-American Affairs. That's what he told the Democratic congressional leaders at his weekly conference. He said he is still hopeful of being able to convince the one-time New Deal brain-truster to take this job.

Berle now heads a special group studying Latin American problems.

Kennedy also defended his proposal for additional gas and truck taxes to finance the nationwide super-highway program. "We will need approximately $300 million in increased funds to keep the highway program on a pay-as-you-go basis," he explained, "and the only way I know of to raise that money is by these taxes. We can't take it from general Treasury funds because we will need every penny to meet our anti-recession and expanded military and space programs."

The congressional leaders warned the President there was considerable grumbling in their ranks over patronage handling. Complained Speaker Sam Rayburn: "There are few days when a good Democrat doesn't come to me to protest that he was not consulted on an appointment from his state. We have to depend on these members for votes, and they are not being treated considerably."

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., reported similar charges, saying, "Obviously there is something amiss with your liaison staff. Senators see no reason why they should not be apprised in advance of appointments in their states. That's a simple courtesy and they are entitled to it."

The President readily agreed and promised to personally "improve this situation."

He assured the leaders, "I give you my word we are going to establish the closest possible cooperation between my staff and Congress. We are working on that, and I'm certain it's going to be done."

Mental Health Compact

The State Legislature at this session has placed before it the Interstate Compact Bill for consideration. The Monroe County Mental Health Assn. is interested in this bill, which has been made the subject of detailed study by National and Pennsylvania Mental Health groups interested in the better care and treatment of the mentally ill.

The Interstate Compact Bill is an agreement between States providing for the care of a mentally ill patient in the State where he becomes ill, if the state where he has his legal residence has joined the compact.

Twenty-two states have joined the Compact; Pennsylvania has not. The main reason seems to stem from the fact that joining the compact might cost additional money. A study shows that Pennsylvania would have saved $7,900 during 1960 if it had been a member of the compact. Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Well, the sunshine came too late for me but the rest of you are going to be nursing scratches, bruises, lame muscles and—well, maybe not sunburn, but at least windburn.

No sooner did I have to go to work than the whole outside world started swarming with people doing things: pruning rose bushes, raking leaves, racing with the dog, hiking, going for a drive with the top down.

One little car swirling around the office driveway held one man with those mammoth sunglasses and another old codger who looked already dead until he took off his rubber face mask.

Shorts and shirtsleeves, tricycles and wagons, ice cream cones and muddy feet—nobody seemed to be wasting a minute of the sunshine but me. The only consolation was that with a first Monday and Tuesday coming up, you're all going to be busy too.

This is the season when nominating committees start tearing their hair and trying to persuade one or more of their own committee to resign so they can nominate her for the office that everybody else is too coy to take.

It is also the season when banquet committees start comparing menus and prices and places and in the process get so hungry they have to take a coffee break.

But more than anything it's the season when you can't wait for it to be really Spring.

River Pact
Endorsed
By Incodel

THE Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin (Incodel) gave its unequivocal approval to the proposed Interstate-Federal Compact for the Delaware River Basin at a business meeting in Philadelphia.

Francis A. Pitkin, Incodel's chairman and the director of the Pennsylvania State Planning Board, stated that the compact constitutes "the most progressive proposal ever advanced in the history of the nation for the development of the water resources of an interstate river basin."

The compact calls for the creation of a Delaware River Basin Commission with broad powers over the planning and execution of projects for flood control, pollution abatement, development of supplies of water, conservation of soil and forest resources, expansion of water based recreational facilities, production of electric power and other related purposes.

The legislation has already been introduced in the New Jersey and New York Legislatures and in the United States Congress. It is scheduled to be introduced in Pennsylvania and Delaware within a matter of days.

Pitkin said that the measure would effectively accomplish the objectives which Incodel tried to attain ten years ago. "Our proposal, however, was limited in scope and representation. The new plan rightly provides that the Federal Government and the States will be partners in the prosecution of a comprehensive water resources plan for the Delaware River Basin."

Among those attending the Incodel meeting, in addition to Pitkin, were Pennsylvania Secretary of Forests and Waters Maurice K. Goddard, Salvatore A. Bontempo, New Jersey Commissioner of Conservation and Economic Development, John C. Thompson, Executive Engineer, New York State Water Resources Commission, and State Senators Reynolds du Pont and Henry T. Price of Delaware.

Many Factors
For Collision

WASHINGTON (AP)—Navy investigators have ruled that a combination of factors—including clouds and an air traffic controller's faulty judgment—helped cause the collision a year ago of a Brazilian airliner and a U. S. Navy plane near Rio de Janeiro. That crash killed 61.

A Navy court of inquiry held the pilots blameless, describing them as "qualified, mature and experienced."

The Feb. 25, 1960. So did 19 members of the U. S. Navy band on their way from Buenos Aires to play at a reception former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, then on a Latin-American tour, had planned for Brazilian officials at the U. S. Embassy.

The Navy four-engine RSD transport had 38 aboard—and only three, seated in its tail section, survived. All 26 aboard the twin-engine DC3 Brazilian airliner perished.

That fool has never been west of Omaha. I spent 4 years in the Orient and let me tell you that nowhere on earth are the women so interested in a man's pocketbook. All they want is a free ticket to the States.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Paul C. Murray and the real estate firm he operates in Lancaster Friday were fined a total of $27,500 for income tax evasion during 1954, 1955 and 1956.

U. S. District Court Judge John W. Lord Jr., fined the 64-year-old Murray $20,000 for evasion payment of $12,304 of his personal income taxes during the three year period. The firm was fined $7,500 for cheating on payment of $5,793 in the same period.

The judge also suspended jail sentence on Murray and placed him on probation for a year.

College Basketball Round-Up

It's Official, Buckeyes To Defend NCAA Crown

By WILL GIMBLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

There never seemed much doubt about it, but the Ohio State Buckeyes have made it official—they'll be on hand to defend their championship in the National Collegiate (NCAA) Basketball Tournament.

The widespread regional playoffs begin March 14, setting in motion a series of eliminations ending with the title game at Kansas City March 25.

The Buckeyes formally qualified for a spot in the field by beating Michigan State Saturday night 91-83, thus clinching the Big Ten Conference crown. They open their title bid against Louisville, an all-large selectee, in Louisville March 14.

Buckeyes Favored

The Ohio States, with All-American Jerry Lucas as a spearhead, are overwhelmingly favored to repeat the triumph scored last year. They now have won 23 straight this year—28 in a row counting five last season—and have been a unanimous choice for No. 1 in the Associated Press poll almost since the season began.

The NCAA tournament field began taking definite shape with the crowning of several conference champions over the weekend.

However, playoffs are necessary to pick representatives from three conferences—the Southeastern, Ohio Valley and Skyline—and two other conferences, the Border and West Coast, are awaiting results of games to be played. Also there are three openings for at-large teams, yet to be selected.

Ohio State's path to the Big Ten title was made easier by Indiana, which upset the Buckeyes' closest pursuer, Iowa, 78-69.

Among the conference champions and tournament representatives decided Saturday night were: Cincinnati (Missouri Valley); George Washington (Southern); Wake Forest (Atlantic Coast);

Princeton (Ivy); and Southern California (Big Five).

All go into the NCAA tournament.

Bears Post 23rd

Cincinnati won its 18th game in a row and its 23rd in 26 starts by beating Marshall 69-57. It clinched the tough Missouri Valley title when Bradley, which had a chance for a tie, was upset by St. Louis 70-63. Bradley now awaits formal invitation to the National Invitation, starting March 16 at Madison Square Garden.

One of the biggest surprises was the triumph of George Washington's rags-to-riches team in the Southern Conference tournament, which decides the NCAA spot. George Washington, which lost 16 of 22 regular season games, won the tournament by beating William & Mary in the finals 93-92. John Feldman scored 45 points.

West Virginia, winner of the regular season race and perennial tournament champion, lost out Friday night.

Wake Forest beat out Duke for the Atlantic Coast tournament crown 96-81. Led by Len Chappell, who scored 33 points, the Deacons pierced Duke's tight zone defense with some effective outside marksmanship.

Trojan Champs

The Big Five title went to Southern California when the Trojans beat back Stanford 79-61 while UCLA knocked Washington out of the running 84-68.

Princeton qualified to represent the Ivy League by beating Harvard 71-59. The Tigers dropped in Saturday night.

Five teams previously had gone into the NCAA through conference championships. They were Kansas City (Big Eight); Ohio U. (Mid-American); St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania (Middle Atlantic); Texas Tech (Southwest) and Rhode Island (Yankee).

Want Clear Picture
"We'd like to clear up the middleweight picture," said Marvin Jenson, Fullmer's manager. Fullmer is recognized as the middleweight champion in New York and Massachusetts.

Gene would like to be the undisputed middleweight champion," Jenson said.

Fullmer fought a savage rubber match with the once dazzling Sugar Man. There were no knockdowns, but Fullmer almost dropped Robinson in a wild and woolly third round that left Robinson battered and helpless against the ropes.

Robinson fought a gallant fight and scored with jolting combinations, but he couldn't slow down the muscular Mormon from Utah.

Fullmer, squinting through an almost closed left eye after his savage brawl with Robinson, said he'd like to fight Pender.

Houck Cancels Squad Games

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Manager Ralph Houck has ruled out intra-squad games for the New York Yankees because he doesn't want to risk any injuries.

Houck, manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, shook his head in disgust when he saw Curry.

"He's only 23 years old," said Mauch. "How can he let himself get in that kind of shape. I thought he was heavy last season. Now he's worse."

Mauch promised the young outfielder he'd run off the excess poundage in the next few weeks.

Jim Brown, North Carolina trackman, is a transfer student from Southern Methodist.

Fullmer Seeks Paul Pender For Complete Middle Title

By PAT McNULTY

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Now I want my hands on Paul Pender and all of the middleweight title," said NBA champion Gene Fullmer Sunday after perhaps ending the career of five-time ex-champion Sugar Ray Robinson.

Gene would like to be the undisputed middleweight champion," Jenson said.

Fullmer had his title by giving the 40-year-old Robinson a thrashing Saturday night before 7,400 fans in Convention Center.

Robinson dodged questions on whether the defeat would put an end to his 21-year ring career, but friends said they thought Robinson could call it a day now that left Robinson battered and helpless against the ropes.

Robinson fought a gallant fight and scored with jolting combinations, but he couldn't slow down the muscular Mormon from Utah.

Fullmer, squinting through an almost closed left eye after his savage brawl with Robinson, said he'd like to fight Pender.

Mauch Mad At Curry

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Tony Curry is 15 pounds over his playing weight and manager Gene Mauch is steaming.

Mauch, manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, shook his head in disgust when he saw Curry.

"He's only 23 years old," said Mauch. "How can he let himself get in that kind of shape. I thought he was heavy last season. Now he's worse."

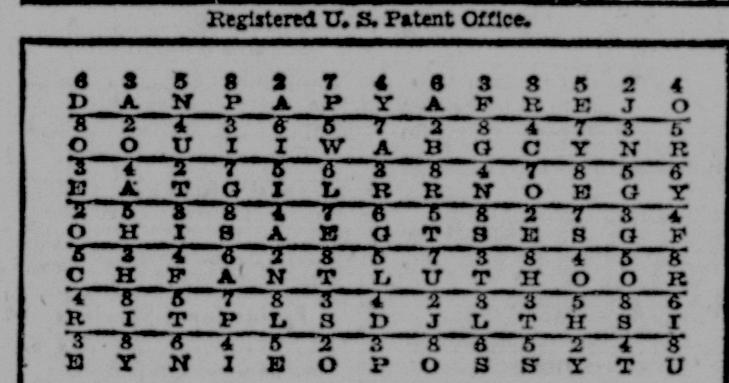

Mauch promised the young outfielder he'd run off the excess poundage in the next few weeks.

PHILIPPEVILLE, Algeria (AP) — Fire destroyed 110 huts housing 600 Moslems at a regrouping center near Jemmepes two days ago, it was announced here Sunday. We'll Bury You!"
says NIKITA KHRUSHCHEV

This is the language of fear. 79 million people on the brink of Communism hear it every day. These are the people in the Iron Curtain countries bordering Soviet Russia.

"We'll bury you," Khrushchev says to the Free World . . . and Europe listens . . . and wonders. Who will answer this communist lie? Who will take up the challenge? You can by supporting RADIO FREE EUROPE.

RADIO FREE EUROPE is a privately sponsored organization that depends upon individual Americans like yourself for its very existence. RFE broadcasts the truth to the millions behind the Iron Curtain awaiting the Free World's answer.

Will you support the truths you live by? Will you give a dollar, five dollars, more? Look in your heart for the answer.

Tall Cedars To Donate To Research

STANLEY R. MELVIN, grand tall cedar of Pocono Forest 124, Stroudsburg, in conjunction with Paul D. Bodwell Jr., supreme tall cedar of the Tall Cedars of Lebanon, announced last night that the annual National Tall Cedars of Lebanon Week is being observed this week.

During the week members of the organization will donate to the Muscular Dystrophy Research. "It was felt for some years" said Melvin, "that the Tall Cedars should have a national objective and in May 1951 a decision was made to take on the Muscular Dystrophy Research."

In charge of the local campaign is Dr. W. R. Erickson, a member of the lodge.

Advance Info Possible

Q. A few years back, I bought some stock in an electric utility company. The stock did not rise much in price but I was satisfied with the steady dividends it paid. One day the broker through whom I had purchased the stock appeared at my door and advised me to sell the stock because it had not shown much growth. I took his advice and sold the stock.

A couple of weeks later, plans were announced to split the stock and to increase the dividend. A friend of mine tells me that the same broker made numerous attempts to buy his shares of the same stock. My friend refused to sell.

Is it possible that this broker knew what was coming and bought up as many shares as he could, in order to profit for himself or some favorite client?

A. Yes, it's possible. You may have run into one of the bad apples in the brokerage barrel.

If you feel you were a victim of fraud or unethical practice on the part of the broker, I suggest you contact the U. S. Securities and Exchange Commission, your state securities commission, the National Assn. of Securities Dealers and any stock exchange of which the brokerage firm is a member.

And the revenuers can come in and spot-check customers' accounts at brokerage houses. They do that all the time. So, if you have any gay ideas about ducking your tax obligations, you had better square away fast.

Anytime a broker walks in cold and urges you to sell some stock you own, it's smart to do some checking around to find out about the situation. Yes, that can be time-consuming and bothersome. But it can often be worthwhile.

This answer is certain to bring outraged screams from those members of the financial community who would have us believe that all brokers are as pure as the driven snow. On the other hand, I often get letters from readers who accuse me of being soft on brokers.

Oh, well, you can't keep everybody happy all the time.

Q. Is it true that brokerage firms have to file with the Internal Revenue Service the names of all their customers who have transactions of more than a certain amount?

A. No. There's no such requirement as that.

However, all brokerage firms are required to report to the IRS all dividends credited to the accounts of all their customers.

And the revenuers can come in and spot-check customers' accounts at brokerage houses. They do that all the time. So, if you have any gay ideas about ducking your tax obligations, you had better square away fast.

Vice Centers Hit

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A former economy minister wants a government program to teach laborers how to spend their pay checks. Gilberto Loyo said Saturday too many bars and vice centers are to blame for keeping too many workers broke. He wants the government, labor unions, newspapers and political parties to cooperate in a "home thrift" program.

Q. Not so long ago, you accepted a 25-cent wager from one of your readers. The reader bet that, sooner or later, a woman would be admitted to membership on the New York Stock Exchange. I read that a woman has been admitted to membership on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Do you lose that quarter?

A. No, not yet. Don't get me wrong. I'm not trying to pitch the life out of 25 cents. I'll pay up, with fanfare, when and if I lose the bet. But that wager very clearly was about admission of a woman to membership on the New York Stock Exchange.
